Homes and cottages along the Irondale and Burnt rivers were flooded last week as heavy rain caused the rivers to overflow their banks. This Snowdon cottage, located along Highway 503, was one of several cut off by the water. Residents near the village of Burnt River were forced from their homes and some were evacuated by the OPP. County asked to find more cuts in budget

by Susan Grober

To cut or not to cut.

That is the question facing county council, in light of resolutions recently passed by four of the 10 municipalities requesting a review of the budget in order to reduce the 35.7 per cent increase passed last month.

Minden, Dysart, Snowdon and Stanhope councils each passed the resolutions last week.

The requests will be discussed by the county's Management Committee next Thursday, says Bicroft Reeve Bill Howe, chairman of the budget committee.

Howe is puzzled by this sudden opposition from some members of county council, as they were the ones who passed the budget in the first place.

"I find it very strange with all the reeves and deputy-reeves being involved in the budget process, and every county councillor being in agreement and giving it their okay," he says.

Contacted by The Times last Friday, the clerks of each of the other six municipalities — Bicroft, Cardiff, Glamorgan, Lutterworth, Monmouth, and Sherborne — say their councils haven't discussed sending the budget back.

There are only three county councillors who pulled a switch by voting for a review after previously approving the budget: Minden Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry, Dysart Reeve Bill Davis, and Stanhope Deputy-Reeve Ann Barker.

At the Dysart council meeting, both Berry and Davis said they've had second thoughts since the budget was passed, and said the budget should be reviewed again for more possible cuts.

There was no discussion when Minden council passed its resolution.

During the Stanhope council meeting, Barker said she's upset over the county's

Health study recommends 40 new beds for county

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

After 15 months of investigation, the committee studying Haliburton County's long-term health, housing and social service needs has released its final report.

Among the recommendations are proposals for 40 additional long-term care beds to be divided between Minden and Haliburton villages, a comprehensive transportation system in the county, and a single access point for community based services.

There is also a long-range proposal to establish a central county hospital midway between the two main villages.

Last Thursday the committee's report was accepted by the Haliburton Kawartha District Health Council and it will now be forwarded to the Ministry of Health for approval.

An eight-page supplement in this week's edition of The Times explains the findings of the committee and the recommendations contained in the report.

The committee was formed in December, 1989 when the province put the plans for an approved 18-bed chronic care addition to the Haliburton Hospital on hold in favour of a comprehensive study into the county's long-term health, housing and social service needs.

The first phase of the process, the study itself, was funded by the Ministry of Health. The second phase, which involves implementation of the recommendations, will be funded by the Ministry of Community and Social Services.

Implementation will begin once the report has been accepted by the province.

In presenting the report to the health council, committee chairman Maureen Dikun said the process began during a very difficult time for the people in Haliburton County who had successfully raised more than $400,000 for the 18-bed expansion.

She said the mandate of the committee was to undertake a comprehensive review of the county's needs in order to strengthen

BIA wants Main St. site for village police officer

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden's downtown merchants are pushing council to loosen its purse strings and pay for a Main Street location to house the village's community-based police officer.

At last Monday's meeting of the Business Improvement Area (BIA), Councillor Lewis Stevens told members the municipality is willing to provide office space in either the firehall on Pritchard Lane or the basement of the township offices.

Stevens said he suggested two or three downtown locations to Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry and was told that space would be offered in facilities already owned by the township.

"The end result is, how much will it cost and who's going to pay for it," said Stevens. "It's a cost factor. We aren't looking for additional expense."

BIA member Gord Monk said the police office should cut to the Chamber of Commerce grant. The $32,700 grant is 53 per cent less than last year's allotment, and the county has directed the money toward specific Chamber activities.

Chamber of Commerce objection to this cut has left the county in a Catch-22 situation.

At an emergency meeting last Tuesday, the Chamber asked the county to lift the restriction on how to spend the grant, and to increase the allotment by $18,000 to maintain adequate staff at the Chamber office.

So county council must tackle the requests of two factions: those who want a budget cut, and those who want an increase.

Snowdon Reeve George Simmons doesn't want to see any changes in the budget.

On Monday night, all Snowdon councillors except Simmons voted in favour of reviewing the budget. "I strongly oppose it," he says. "But I follow the wishes of my council."

Simmons is the only Snowdon councillor who sits on county council. "I tried as a reeve to explain where the county council's decision was in passing the budget," he says. "But then it swung back, and backroom politicking took over."

To cut the budget further would mean negative repercussions to the county, says Simmons.

"If you cut much more, how can the Chamber of Commerce function and survive this year? If we slash the roads budget much more, we'll be losing jobs because construction in the county will go way down."

County Chief Administrative Officer Gary McKnight made presentations to both Snowdon and Dysart councils recently, to go through the budget line by line and answer any questions.

Both meetings had councillors, residents and representatives of cottagers' associations in attendance.

McKnight says it's now up to county council as a whole to decide how to address concerns expressed by the four municipalities.

"I'm not sure how they're going to handle this," he says. "If enough ask to have another look, then we'll have another look."

McKnight says there seems to be confusion amongst some who oppose the budget increase, because they fear they must each pay an extra 35.7 per cent.

He says the average increase taxpayers will see may be about $40 in Dysart, $28 in Lutterworth, and $22 in Snowdon.

"Some of the people think their tax bill is going to go right through the roof," but McKnight says this isn't so.

Reeve Simmons says many people are willing to sacrifice an extra $22 to pay GST on an expensive watch, but then complain about a tax increase.

"Right now, it's important for Haliburton County to survive," he says. "I can take the $22 increase on my home."

McKnight also points out that some suggested cuts to county departments could actually mean bigger bucks will have to be paid at the end of the line.

For example, Dysart Councillor Murray Fearrey questioned the $100,060 economic development budget at last Monday's meeting.

As we are already in the fourth month of the year, some of that money has been spent, says McKnight.

Also, this budget has already been approved for 75 per cent funding from the Ministry of Industry, Trade and Technology, he says. Any changes could jeopardize that funding.

Fearrey objected to the fact that the economy is too sluggish at present to start funding new projects such as economic development and the county official plan. Other new programs include waste management and the Gypsy Moth spray program.

"But don't lose sight that those new programs are only about four per cent of that budget increase," says McKnight.

About 24 per cent of the increase comes from factors the county can't control: the deficit, and mandated programs such as welfare and Children's Aid, and the health unit.

Increases in general operation costs, such as roads, make up about eight per cent of the increase.

"So there isn't a whole lot you can do with that," says McKnight.

Warden Carol Puffer could not be reached for comment on Friday.

Stanhope council agrees with budget review

Budget cuts must be "ruthless" says Gardner

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

County Council should slash spending in order to bring the 1991 budget under control, according to Stanhope councillor Fred Gardner.

At last Wednesday's meeting Stanhope council passed a resolution asking the county to review the 35.7 increase in the county's levy.

"As a former businessman, I would question anything in the budget that puts it up," said Gardner. While the county has to accept the increased cost of provincially-mandated social services, which account for about 24 per cent of the tax increase, Gardner said county controlled spending should increase by no more than five per cent.

The county should be "ruthless" and put on hold any programs exceeding the five per cent ceiling.

Reeve Harry Davis said the budget has created a lot of controversy and disagreement since it was released last month.

"I'd like to see County go back at it, but I don't know where we can make appreciable cuts," said Davis. He said he doesn't approve of the 35 per cent increase and would like to see it closer to 20 per cent.

Councillor Murray Daniels asked if there are any programs the county could slow down and "get off the fast track."

Elinor Harrison said she wondered if implementation of the economic development plan could be delayed until 1992. She also said she was disappointed in the County's allotment to the Chamber of Commerce which was cut to less than half of last year's level.

"The County's own study showed that tourism is the number one industry in the county and always will be," said Harrison. "Why take away the sales people that are selling the county?"

Davis said much of the criticism levelled at the county has been coming from people who helped initiate and supported these projects in the first place. "Are we going to start programs then cut them off?" he asked.

Deputy-Reeve Ann Barker said that during the county's budget discussions, Davis asked if any of the initiatives could be put on hold, and the answer was a "flat no."

"Someone should be strong enough to prove there isn't such a thing as a 'flat no'," said Harrison. "I get the feeling we're in competition with Victoria and Peterborough. We don't have to be."

Davis said that during last year's budget process he felt the county was trying to do too much, too quickly. "Why do we have to do it all at once?" he asked. "Why can't we do the official plan this year, and economic development in two years?"

He said the only place the county could make cuts is in areas where the county is spending enough dollars to cut - such as the Chamber and the roads department.

Because of provincial subsidies, Davis said every $100 cut from the roads department results in a much larger decrease in the amount of work that can be done. The county has already cut back $1 million in road work this year.

Barker said she was surprised that County Council was able to reduce the budget to a 35 per cent increase, considering they started with a budget that would have increased taxes by more than 50 per cent.

Clerk Gerald Bain said Stanhope's portion of the county levy will be $219,623, an increase of $57,786 from last year.

A resident whose property is assessed at $600, paid taxes of $905.76 in 1990. The County's levy increase, which makes up about 10 per cent of the total tax bill in Stanhope, will add another $34.26 which represents an increase of 3.78 per cent.

Council criticized for proceeding with costly projects

Dysart reeve admits to "haste" in accepting county budget

by Susan Grober

Dysart council has asked the county to take its budget back to the drawing board and work on lowering the 35.7 per cent increase.

County Chief Administrative Officer Gary McKnight went through the budget line by line during last Monday's Dysart council meeting, which was moved to the arena to accommodate the 35 residents in attendance.

"I personally believe we should take another look at the budget, department by department," said Reeve Bill Davis. "I think we should give you, the taxpayer, that courtesy."

Davis said his phone has been ringing constantly with concerned ratepayers. "I may have acted in haste (in voting for the budget)," he said. "I believe there are areas that can be cut. I supported the document, and I admit I may have been wrong."

"It's discouraging that our elected officials are not sure of what's in the dollars," said Bob Whigmore, president of the Kennis Lake Cottagers Association. "I think you'd better break up the budget dollars. Somebody's spending money they have no right to spend."

Whigmore asked county council to show better business sense, and used the analogy of paying for a vacation. "Everybody can go to Florida and find the money to pay for it later on. The bottom line here is, you can't afford to go to Florida," he said to the applause of fellow ratepayers.

Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis, Minden Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry, and Minden Councillor Mike Maher were also present at the meeting.

"I feel embarrassed, I feel concerned," said Berry, who sits on county council. "I feel there's enough reeves and deputy-reeves who have shown concern, that I personally want to take the budget back. I think we've proven here today, without any more whipping, that this budget needs to be looked at."

"You're whipping county council, not me," said McKnight, who merely presented the budget and was not instrumental in its passage.

Councillor Murray Fearrey has been critical of the budget since it was announced, and did most of the questioning during the meeting.

Fearrey said the county has budgeted too much money on projects which should be held off until the economy picks up.

"We're in the worst recession since the depression," he said. "I don't think the time to move this quickly is here. We should be slowing down a little bit."

Fearrey questioned the $100,000 budget for economic development, and said too much is budgeted for travel and accommodation.

"What are we doing, going around the world?" Fearrey asked. "Good God, this is a period of restraint."

McKnight said part of the money also pays for office supplies, telephone, internal office rental and advertising. The budget also covers travel for the economic development task force.

And the overall economic development budget pays for part of the salaries of planner Mark Stagg and a secretary, as well as implementation of economic development strategies.

"This department is completely out of control," said Fearrey. "We're building a bureaucracy. It sends shivers up my spine."

Funding for economic development, which has been approved by the Ministry of Industry, Trade and Technology (MITT), is 75 per cent, said McKnight. "These government agencies have X number of dollars to spend, and if it doesn't go to Haliburton County, it goes somewhere else and we have to pay for it anyway."

Fearrey disputed the logic in spending money to get money in a time of recession. "The old story is, if you don't spend grants now, you'll never get them again," he said. "Counties across the province have been cutting back on MITT funding because they can't afford it."

Bill Davis also said the timing is wrong for such planning costs, but the county has little choice unless it takes action with the provincial government.

"The planning process being mandated by the government to the county," he said. "If they really believe this county is in a recession, they should not expedite

Chamber vows to continue, asks County to change funding

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Refusing to roll over and play dead, members of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce are asking County Council to revise the county's contribution to the 1991 budget.

At a special meeting last Tuesday, about 90 members of the Chamber passed a resolution asking the county to remove spending restrictions on the $32,700 allotment and to increase the amount by $18,000.

The members refused to give the board of directors authority to suspend Chamber operations if the county does not make the requested adjustments.

Treasurer Shawn Hagerman presented the Chamber members with a revised budget taking into account the reduced contribution from the county. The budget reflected a significantly reduced mandate, with the Chamber doing little more than operating a tourist information bureau at its Highway 35 office, staffed by only a single employee.

Although the membership accepted the budget as information, they decided not to formally pass it until the county has been given a chance to review its budget.

Last year the Chamber received $70,000 from the County. This year the board of directors requested $73,500 and received $32,700 - a decrease of 53 per cent.

Of the money saved by the decrease, $25,000 was directed towards the County's economic development program and the province contributed another $75,000.

The County also directed how its share of the Chamber's budget should be spent, specifying certain trade shows, event development and advertising.

If the restrictions aren't lifted, Hagerman said the Chamber will be out of money in two weeks to a month.

The Chamber's budget was based on past dealings with the County, said Hagerman. He said that in 1985, the Chamber entered into a three-year marketing agreement with the County.

When that agreement expired in 1988, Hagerman said the County decided to renew on a year-to-year basis.

"This year I went as an update," he said. "No one told me the agreement was not in force."

The list of initiatives that the County's money would finance was meant only as an outline of the Chamber's marketing program, he said. "It was not meant as a shopping list to pick and choose from. It was meant as a package."

Representing the County at the Chamber meeting were Warden Carol Puffer and Chief Administrative Officer Gary McKnight.

Addressing the gathering, Puffer said preparing the county's budget was a difficult task with council facing tight restrictions and a large tax increase.

Of the 35.7 per cent increase, Puffer said 24 per cent was due to the cost of services that the province requires the county to help finance.

County initiatives, such as economic development, waste management and the official plan, accounted for five per cent.

"We have to continue to provide new services," said Puffer. "I realize there's a recession, but we must continue to grow. We can't be paralyzed by provincially-mandated services."

Council does not want to shelve the economic development plan and is committed to pursuing the strategies resulting from it, she said. As a result of the strategies, the County will assume primary concern for economic development and will foster strong ties with

Community responds to local food drive efforts

by Susan Grober

The recession hasn't put a damper on the generosity of local residents.

A two-week food drive recently sponsored by the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) raised a total 265 pounds of food and $411.39 in monetary donations. More than half of the money raised, $235.30 to be exact, was through looney bins placed throughout Hyland Crest Senior Citizens' Home.

"I was quite pleased with the community effort, especially with the hard times there are in the area," says Gwen Hewitt, President CUPE Local 2787, Minden Hospital. "They did really well."

Last week, Hewitt delivered boxes and bags of food to the Minden Food Cupboard at St. Paul's Anglican Church in Minden. The community donated a wide variety of foods: beans, peanut butter, spaghetti fixings, soups, vegetables, flour, sugar, tea, coffee, puddings, hot chocolate, and of course Kraft Dinner.

Food boxes were at the legion, IGA, Valu-mart, and CHACE drop-in centre. Looney banks were at the legion, CHACE, IDA drugstore, Sunny Convenience, and Minden Hospital.

Donations will help local people in need of help.

"I think it's important that people realize it's not only families on social assistance getting food," says Hewitt.

"It's also people who have been laid off, and are waiting for their unemployment cheque. Or people earning minimum wage, who are having trouble making ends meet. It's a real problem."

Any necessary items which weren't donated will be offered at wholesale cost by both Jug City and Foster's General Store, in Carnarvon.

When the supplies eventually dwindle, another food drive may be sponsored, Hewitt says. However, she doesn't think foodbanks are the answer to the hunger problem.

"It's just a temporary measure," she says. "The government is going to have to take over responsibility, and come up with an affirmative action plan."

"This is just a helping hand over a crisis period. We don't see it as long term for individual families. The government will have to find a solution."

The money will be used to purchase perishable goods, and items such as baby formula and diapers, and perhaps even prescription drugs.

A story last month in The Times promoted the food drive, and Hewitt says it wasn't just those with donations who responded.

"Since the article first appeared, the demand on the Food Cupboard has increased," she says. "A lot of people weren't aware of its existence."

Also, many local churches were active in mentioning the food drive through bulletins. "It's a non-denominational foodbank," says Hewitt.

It's Rev. Brian Parker's job to determine whether the people who request help from the foodbank are really in need.

"A few more people have come in to try it out since the article, and I found their needs to be legitimate," he says. "I expect even more will come for help now."

Rev. Parker was also impressed with the response from the community.

"I'm very grateful," he says. "I'd like to give a really sincere thanks to CUPE and Gwen, and the people of this area for their generosity. It was far more than we were hoping for."

Rev. Parker says the drive generated good spirit, not only in the community, but within the church as well.

"It stirred up the parish again," he says. "Some of the boxes were brought here by parishioners, and that was nice to see."

The cupboard which normally stores the food is too small to hold everything that was donated. It will be moved from a hallway into one of the church's school rooms where there is more space.

"I do have some concerns, obviously," says Rev. Parker. "First of all, that the need is very great, and it's an ongoing need. When there's a food drive, people think the only times others need help are Christmas and Easter."

"But there's a lot of unemployment in this area right now, and it looks like it's going to be awhile before there's any relief from that," he says.

Rev. Brian Parker and Gwen Hewitt hold armfuls of food collected through a food drive sponsored by the Canadian Union of Public Employees. The 265 pounds of food and $411 will help local people who are in need.

Rev. Parker's other concern is he now needs assistance from parishioners to organize the foodbank.

"We're going to have to be prepared for it. We may provide the food two days of the week. But I've told people that money donations can only be provided once a month."

He agrees with Hewitt that the foodbank is only a Band-Aid solution.

"We need more real initiative from the government," says Rev. Parker. "We need people to pray for the government, for people on welfare, and people in need. Then we need people to put those prayers in action."

Rev. Parker disagrees with those who say the government is doing too much already for welfare cases.

"It's quite easy to sit back and say they wouldn't work anyway. It's that blame-the-victim mentality," he says.

"What we need are people who will try to take an honest look at the situation. (Those receiving social assistance) don't always fit into the kind of stereotypical kind of image that we have."

While going through the donated food items, Hewitt points out a case of Kraft Dinner purchased by friends who used money won in a hockey pool.

"That's a great way to celebrate a win," says Rev. Parker. "Now everybody wins."

Rev. Parker has faith in the willingness of local people to help out those who are less fortunate.

"We, as a church and a community, should praise God that He puts in our hearts the will to help people."

BIA wants officer downtown be located somewhere more visible than either of the township's suggestions. He said many people, especially visitors, don't know where the fire hall is located.

The BIA is hoping that the officer can be given office space in one of the vacant store fronts on the Main Street. Rents for these locations range from $300 to $500 a month.

At a public meeting on community policing last month, OPP Staff Sergeant Bill Elliott said the municipality is responsible for providing an office and telephone for the officer and that a Main Street location would be preferable.

Monk said the situation is frustrating because in Haliburton village, where community policing has been in effect for almost a year, Dysart council has been "going all out" to accommodate the situation.

Stevens said that in conversations with Elliott the sergeant has said that community policing is receiving strong support from municipalities throughout the province.

"It's not been that way here," said snack bar owner Harry Pye.

Elliott is in the process of forming a community policing committee which will work with Constable Mark McMaster, Minden's designated officer, to implement police services in the village.

Stevens suggested that the BIA should put forward its proposals to the committee and also meet with council to discuss concerns about the location.

"Taking it farther might produce some results," said Stevens.

"If council has taken the attitude the don't want the expense, then council should be chastised," said store owner Joe Shapiera. "Neither the firehall nor the basement is suitable."

Monk said that if the officer is going to be put in the firehall, he might as well stay at the detachment on Highway 35. "The best defense is a strong offense," said Monk. "We should pass a resolution objecting to an off-street location."

Stevens said council would agree to a Main Street location as long as the municipality doesn't have to pay for it.

"It's a foregone conclusion that they're going to be forced to pay for it," said Monk.

The members unanimously passed a resolution calling for the community police office to be placed in a prominent, visible, downtown location within the business area.

Cardiff man fined for damaging wife's van

A Cardiff man who breached his probation after damaging his ex-wife's van must pay $118.70 in restitution and a total $150 fine.

On March 9, Lee Alexander Sutherland kicked the front grill of Roberta Sutherland's van while he was bound by a probation order for two years to keep the peace and be of good behaviour.

He pleaded guilty to mischief under $1,000, and breach of probation.

Woron said the woman attended her ex-husband's residence to pick up the couple's children. Lee Sutherland became angry, and kicked the grill.

"He said he was upset, and only attempted to kick the bumper," said Woron, who asked for a total $150 fine, rather than a jail sentence.

"I'm sorry it happened," said Sutherland. "It'll never happen again."

"Normally, we give 30 days in jail for breach of probation," said Judge Inrig. "The Crown Attorney is being very generous. He seems to think it's December, rather than April."

The judge also warned Sutherland to follow the conditions of his probation in the future. "If your brought in here on another breach, you'll be going to jail."

It's truly amazing what a little public opinion can do to a politician's demeanor.

Last month, County Council unanimously passed a budget calling for a 35.7 per cent increase in the levy and, for the first time, deputy-reeves were invited to join the reeves in the budget setting process.

Upon passing the budget, some county councillors said they were pleased by the fact that they had managed to cut the tax increase from its original level of more than 50 per cent.

They admitted it was a "bad news" budget but felt they had done the best possible job.

Now some of those same councillors are saying they are "embarrassed" by the initial attempt and that they may have acted in haste by passing it.

But if council thought the budget was a trial the first time around, the second attempt is going to be worse.

First they have to deal with two very diverse issues — the demands by municipal councillors and ratepayers to lower the levy and, on the other hand, a request for more funds from the Chamber of Commerce.

If this council can do the impossible and spend more money while lowering taxes then its members will be deserving of all our praise and admiration.

What council has to keep in mind is that it's the ratepayers of the county who have to live with any spending cuts and program reductions, so it's the ratepayers who should be allowed to decide how much to spend and where to spend it.

With budgets still to come from the board of education and the municipalities, the county has been given a rare second chance to set a fiscally-responsible pace for others to follow.

How true. And no gun more enduring than the one that so recently achieved superstar status in the Gulf War. The Arme du jour of the entire Middle East. They adopted the AK-47 as a kind of insurgents Door Crashers Special. The basic Kalashnikov design was passed along to Russia's many "spheres of influence" including the weapons-hungry Chinese.

In those days of course, there was a world-revolution to foment. It wasn't long before rebels from the rice paddies of Vietnam to the mountain ranges of Nicaragua were prying open crates of brand new AK-47s wrapped in oil-soaked cotton.

The AK-47 was the Volkswagen Bug of the arms world. It offered economy, easy maintenance, not too much weight and awesome firepower. Even non-revolutionaries admired it. The "Kalash" became a staple in the wardrobes of Miami drug dealers and CIA-sponsored troublemakers too.

All guns found at the shooting range are small arms

Editor:

For the enlightenment of the person objecting to the existence of the Haliburton County Marksmen Club, small arms is defined in Janes Infantry Weapons as "Of less than 20 mm calibre (largely weapons that are either handheld or supported by bipod to tripod)". From my experience at other clubs (Sharon, Port Perry, Cannington) almost all the centerfire rifles being shot will be under 8 mm in diameter, and if over 8 mm firing relatively heavy slow bullets with no supersonic crack. Rimfire rifles, handguns and shotguns generally lack the supersonic crack of centerfire rifles and contribute much less noise.

I would be really surprised to find someone shooting something like a Browning 50 calibre M2HB Heavy Machinegun converted to fire semi-automatically at targets at $5 per shot.

Most outdoor target ranges are most heavily used Sunday afternoons. All of Lutterworth Twp. north of highway 503 is in Wildlife Management Unit 56 and there is something legal to hunt there six days a week, 52 weeks a year (no Sunday hunting with rifles or shotguns in Wildlife Management 56). As a consequence there will be gunfire noise seven days a week. Might I suggest that persons that find the normal outdoor noises in Haliburton County objectionable move to Walkers point in Wildlife Management 53B where there is no legal hunting from June 15 to September 1, and a general discouragement of firearms discharging.

I might further report from my past experience with outdoor target ranges that 90% of the noise the Marksmen are probably being blamed for is not due to their activities at all, but due to normal outdoor activities occurring in any rural area permitting hunting.

From my residence north of Minden, you normally hear two or three gunshots per hour during a normal day. A normal person stops noticing this noise as well as the traffic noises from highway 35, the outboard motors on Mountain Lake, snowmachines, chainsaws, bird calls, wind noises, barking dogs, airplanes, etc. The outdoors is very rarely quiet.

Peter W.H. Terry.

P.S. I am not a member of the Haliburton County Marksmen Club, but I can sympathize with the problems a single person suffering from gun-phobia can cause a gun club with an outdoor range.

Committee member resigned because of council's attitude

Editor:

Please find enclosed a copy of my letter resigning from Municipal Committees. I would be happy to discuss it in further detail if anyone is interested.

Members of Council:

Effective at 9:00 a.m., Thursday, April 4, 1991, I tender my resignation from the Recreation, Utilities, and Planning Advisory Committees of the Municipality of Anson, Hindon and Minden.

My decision is based on the events of a joint Recreation-Council meeting on Wednesday, April 3, 1991, and the conduct of certain members of our council.

I have tried to be an asset to the committees with my opinions, whether they be constructive or critical. After the events of last night's joint meeting, I wonder if council wants this type of person.

Volunteers are a necessity, are all willing to give freely of their time, as I did, but should not be subject to abusive conduct and attitudes displayed by some members of this council.

Sincerely,
Jim Garbutt.

Editor:

Apparently some scientists at NASA are spending millions of dollars building and using giant telescopes to scour the vastness of the universe looking for Black Holes.

Now these Black Holes are objects which have the ability to suck in all forms of matter and energy and make them disappear. I mean, what a concept. Imagine, it just doesn't come out again once it falls into one of these things.

In any case, they are wasting their money. All they have to do is point their device at a small, insignificant city on the banks of the Ottawa River right here on the Planet Earth. There they can study this interesting phenomenon at a fraction of what it's costing them at this time.

Now, I have an interesting theory, one which I'm sure won't win me a Nobel prize. Maybe all those Black Holes out there are nothing but the decayed remnants of civilization that have collapsed under the weight of their own governments.

Regarding the the comments in your newspaper article dated April 1, 1991.

I was the first Vice President with Dr. Jeffrey Lodenquai who formed the club.

I continue to actively support this organization. If the critics would stop and consider that the existence of this well organized group is 'MUCH' safer than individuals using a 'patch' of wooded area and indiscriminately blazing at whatever they choose.

The club has a good, safe range and it is well monitored!

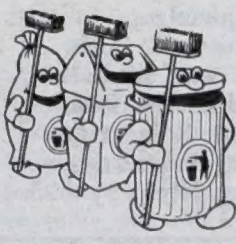

Previous to the formation of the club, the homes within a considerable area were contacted personally for their reaction and none offered any opposition.

I was Deputy Reeve of Lutterworth Council at the time and do not recall any concerted opposition.

cameras panned over mounds of AK-47s salvaged from the ruins of Iraqi bunkers and caravans. The price of an AK-47 varies wildly. In the desert sands of Kuwait they're free for the taking. You'll pay about $50 for a reasonable copy in the gun bazaars of Pakistan. In Honduras, you can probably find an ex-contras in a bar who'll sell you his for $100. Washington gun boutiques have waiting lists for brand new models. They're asking anywhere from $750 to $1,000 per unit. You can't buy one legally in Canada, but the government in South Africa pays $2500 for every one a citizen hands in, no questions asked.

In Mozambique the death-dealing rifle is so familiar it appears on the national emblem—a hoe crossed with an AK-47. Ironically, that war-torn, starvation-raddled country is also the only place where the rifle trades for something more valuable than money. In Mozambique one used AK-47 can be traded for a 50-pound bag of corn.

The scattering of what's left of Hussein's army will put more AK-47s on the world market, but they've lost a point or two in the glamour department. They didn't prove very effective against smart bombs, Apache helicopters or F-18s.

Still, a small-time terrorist, be he CIA, PLO or IRA sponsored, has to get his army boot in the door somehow, doesn't he? And what better way than with a gun that's chattered out its own leaden legend in more than four decades of mayhem? I think the AK-47 will be around for awhile.

Which is too bad. There's another, more promising weapon on the market right now that's been somewhat eclipsed by the ominous shadow of the AK-47. It's smaller, lighter, cheaper and even easier to maintain than the Kalashnikov. Does lots more too. With this weapon you can open cans, cut paper dolls, file your nails, tweeze out slivers and pop wine corks. The classic red-handled model has been around for more than 70 years. Next fall, it will be available in a host of colours, including canary, camel and ivory.

Not the kind of Yuppie hues normally associated with a weapon of destruction—but then this is more a weapon of construction, despite its name.

That's what I'd like to see: A whole world re-armed.

Burnt and Irondale rivers swollen by heavy rains

Flood waters swamp homes and cottages

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Burnt and Irondale rivers overflowed their banks last week, flooding homes and cottages in parts of Haliburton and Victoria Counties.

The worst flooding occurred near the village of Burnt River in Somerville Township where the river covered roads and stranded people in their homes.

By Wednesday, both rivers were flowing well above their recorded maximums, threatening about 400 buildings.

There were no reported injuries as a result of the flooding, although some permanent residents were evacuated from their homes by the OPP. A majority of affected buildings are cottages and were vacant when the rivers flooded.

According to Blaine Trumbull of the Trent Severn Waterway, the flood waters peaked at about 11 p.m. on Wednesday, stabilized by Thursday morning, and had receded about a foot by Friday afternoon.

Trumbull said all the dams below the flooded area were opened wide to release the water. "We're attempting to spread the rate of rise evenly and share the grief," he said.

Minden weather watcher Phil Graham said he recorded 2.4 inches of rainfall from Monday morning to Wednesday. More than half that amount fell on Wednesday alone.

By Thursday morning the water flooded a portion of Highway 121 just south of Burnt River, and road crews restricted traffic to one lane as cars crawled through almost a foot of water.

Township offices reported that some cottage roads were washed out, and crews were busy trying to restore access to flooded properties.

MNR staff from the Minden office, led by Mike Belcher, assisted Somerville Township is assessing damage and keeping an eye on the Kinmount dam.

Although water levels rose in rivers and lakes throughout the area, the Burnt River is especially prone to flooding, says Ian McNabb, general manager of the Kawartha Region Conservation Authority.

McNabb says the lakes along the Gull River give the system more capacity to handle the increased flow.

Because warm weather earlier this spring melted most of the snow, McNabb says the system was not as swollen with spring run-off as it could have been.

Also, because most of the ice is gone, there were no ice jams that could have increased flooding by blocking the flow of water south.

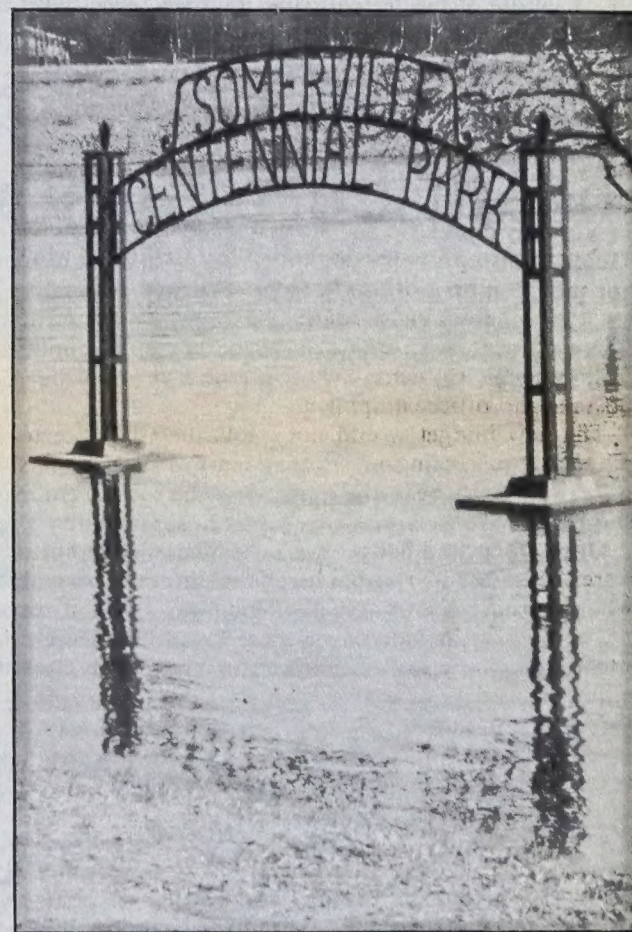

"It's not as bad as it could have been," said McNabb, "but it's bad enough for anyone involved."

Trumbull says the reservoir lakes in Haliburton County rose sharply, some by as much as a foot, last Thursday and Friday and most have reached capacity.

Although rain has been forecast for early this week, Trumbull says the amount of rainfall expected should not have a significant effect on flooded areas. In any event with dams to south wide open there is little more that can be done.

But with reservoir lakes at capacity and the ground saturated, any more rain will enter the river system, and Graham says we still haven't seen the full effect of run-off from melting snow in the Kenissis Lake area.

"All we can do is keep our fingers crossed," he said.

Clockwise from top: Highway 121 south of Burnt River was completely submerged; This gate was all that marked the location of the Somerville Park; Properties along Highway 503.

Revised budget reduces Chamber to information office existing groups without having a duplication of responsibilities.

Puffer praised the Chamber's promotional skills and said the county wants to promote a "spirit of mutual cooperation" and have the Chamber work with the newly-formed economic development task force.

This task force, working with the Chamber and the Haliburton County Development Corporation, will continue to initiate ideas particularly in the tourism sector, she said.

After Puffer's presentation, Hagerman presented the amended Chamber budget which he said would be conditional on the county allowing the board of directors to decide where the $32,700 would be spent.

Brutal budget

He described it as "one of the most difficult budgets" he's had to set and said he had to "wrestle with things we've taken for granted, things that have put us at the forefront of Chambers."

"I had to be brutal," he said.

A bulk of the Chamber's revenue would come from the County, with $32,700, and membership fees which bring in $26,000. Hagerman said prompt payment of outstanding fees is vital to the Chamber's continued operation. He also noted that the Chamber is still owed $8,000 in advertising revenue from the Destinations Guide.

The one expense the County did not agree to pay that Hagerman said was crucial to Chamber operations is the $4,800 membership to the Central Ontario Travel Association (COTA).

Not only does COTA distribute 35,000 copies of the Guide, it also provides two travel counsellors to work for the Chamber during the summer.

Other expenses included the Chamber manager as the lone employee, with wages and benefits amounting to $32,000, building maintenance, a phone and Watts line, postage and office equipment.

The new budget would not allow the Chamber to pursue any marketing outside the county unless members were willing to bear the expense of attending trade shows without the Chamber's financial support.

Once the revised budget was presented, the members were then presented with a list of resolutions to decide what approach the Chamber should take.

The options included asking the County to rescind spending restrictions, approaching the individual municipalities for support, asking the County to pay the requested amount of $73,500 with the understanding that County support will be phased out over seven years, suspending operations in order to re-assess the future, and doubling membership fees.

After the resolutions were presented, the floor was open to questions and comments from the membership.

Dysart councillor Bob Nicholl asked Hagerman how the Chamber could promote Haliburton County without going to trade shows. Hagerman said the aim of his revised budget was to be realistic and keep the office doors open.

He mentioned that a delegation of volunteers, led by Curtis Eastmure, would be in Ottawa for a trade show and would set up a Haliburton County display at no cost to the Chamber.

John Gunning asked whether, given the reduced services offered by the Chamber, some members would not expect their membership fees to decrease and that others might drop out altogether.

Call for unity

Hagerman said the directors hoped the members would pull together and that new businesses might join in effort to help.

One member questioned a statement by Puffer that the Chamber is resort-dominated, given the fact that only 80 of the 300 members are resort and lodge owners.

Puffer said she realizes the Chamber is made up of more than just resorts and that her comment was meant to reflect that the organization is tied to the private sector. She said the County wants to look at a wide range of economic strategies of which tourism will be one area of interest.

Bob Stintson argued with idea of calling the County's contribution to the Chamber a "grant." He said the County has a responsibility to market Haliburton County as a tourist destination and Council is really paying a "fee for services" to the Chamber for fulfilling that role.

Puffer was then asked how the $100,000 economic development budget will be spent and how the County's mandate will compare to the Chamber's and the Haliburton County Development Corporation.

She said the Chamber's role is to provide services to members, provide information to tourists and lure visitors to the county. The Haliburton County Development Corporation lends money and provides advice for the business community, she said.

The County's mandate will encompass a wider scope, said Puffer. It will look at attracting new businesses to the area, promoting local industrial parks, engaging in public relations, establishing a county-wide data base and improving the quality and quantity of local employment.

County wants cooperation

"We're not interested in pulling the plug on the Chamber, we're interested in working with the Chamber," she said.

Later, Andy Campbell, general manager of the development corporation, clarified the HCDC's role as stimulating economic growth, providing permanent employment and participating in training programs. He said it's more than just "banking and consulting."

Pearl Foster of the Guild of Fine Arts asked Puffer if the County's decision to restrict spending on the County's portion of the budget was an attempt to take control of the Chamber.

Puffer said that in the past the Chamber has said that the County's allotment would only be used for marketing and promotion and not directed towards administrative costs.

This year, council went through the marketing report and earmarked those activities it felt should be priorities in marketing the county, she said. "We're not trying to take over and run the Chamber."

Barb Bolin, principal of Sir Sandford Fleming College's Haliburton campus, said the County has a responsibility to promote the county and the Chamber should reject any notion of phasing out the County's financial contribution.

The Chamber should look at an increase in funds, back to and above the original level, she said.

Of the 900 registrations the college has received for their School of Fine Arts, Bolin said 20 per cent use the services of the Chamber. "If the Chamber of Commerce does not exist, we're going to have problems," she said.

Chamber secretary Dennis Casey accused the County of sending a mixed message about the services it expects the Chamber to provide.

"Carol has told us the things the Chambers is supposed to do, but we can't afford to provide the services we are providing," he said. "We can't do anything now, that's the reality."

He said Muskoka has been into tourism promotion twice as long as Haliburton County and that Haliburton still has a lot to learn. "The County's decision has set us back 10 years," he said.

Snowdon Reeve George Simmons addressed the meeting and, reading from a prepared text, attempting to defend the direction taken by the County.

He said the challenge facing the County Council is to develop sound policies based on future needs. The County must "encourage a growth climate that is responsive to the needs of the community," said Simmons. "We have to break away from dependence on government programs."

During his presentation, Larcade interrupted and reminded Simmons that the discussion was supposed to be a question and answer session, not a forum for "political speeches" but she allowed him to continue.

He said the County has to pay today for a stagnant approach in the past and that Haliburton is "ill-prepared" to meet today's challenges.

"Those organizations impacted by County decreases will be benefitted by the sacrifices to build a stronger community tomorrow," he read. He said council struggled to cut the tax increase from more than 50 per cent to 35.7 per cent and cutting anymore would leave everyone in jeopardy.

Haliburton Village business owner Ken Langdon addressed the County's goal of bringing industry to Haliburton County.

"It's not ever going to work," he said. "Our industry is tourism and services. If you're thinking of bring factories up here, you're living in dream world. You just severed the arm that is promoting tourism."

He said the County is either "dumb" or it has a hidden agenda, and he asked Puffer what that agenda is.

"There is no hidden agenda," said Puffer. "That's why we're here."

"Then you must be dumb," retorted Langdon.

Resort owner Art Ward said it would be "ludicrous" to support the resolution calling for a gradual withdrawal of County funds from the Chamber.

"That would be accepting defeat, and I wouldn't accept any defeat from this County Council," he said.

While the Chamber might have to accept a reduction of funds because of the County's budgetary pressure, Ward said it shouldn't be $40,000 less.

Derek Lowry, asked Puffer about the County's plans in the future with respect to its contribution to the Chamber.

Puffer said it is her understanding that the County's allotment would be reduced in the future in the expectation that the Chamber will become more self-sufficient. She said council discussed reducing the grant and the amount of the reduction. A majority of councillors favoured a $40,000 reduction this year with the intent of phasing out the grant all together in the next two or three years.

Hagerman said the board of directors was never informed of the County's intention to phase the funding out.

Stanhope Deputy-Reeve Ann Barker, who sits as both a member of County Council and a member of the Chamber board of directors, said the issue of funding the Chamber took more discussion than any other part of the County's budget.

She said some councillors were in favour of cutting more than the $40,000 while others, including the Warden, suggested a cut of $25,000. Barker said she was "very upset" by the final decision.

More funds possible

Some Chamber members asked Puffer if it's possible that some of the $100,000 economic development budget could be funneled back to the Chamber, allowing it to continue its promotional activities in cooperation with the County, or if the County will be assuming some of the tasks now performed by the Chamber.

Although vague on the specifics, Puffer said the County's economic task force will be considering a number of initiatives and if a viable proposal is made, and supported by the planning committee, it's possible that some more money could be directed to the Chamber in that manner.

Dysart et al Reeve Davis said Council did not realize the effect that opting out of COTA would have on the Chamber and he supported the idea of lifting spending restrictions. "We did not know the devastating effect it would have on the Chamber," he said. "You know where to get the biggest bang for the buck."

Puffer said she would also support the Chamber's request to have the restrictions on the grant rescinded.

The membership decided not to pass Hagerman's revised budget until the County has reviewed its contribution.

Instead they passed a resolution by Langdon that the County be asked to lift the spending restrictions and increase the amount of the contribution by $18,000 to allow for adequate staffing of the Chamber office.

Hagerman also asked for approval to temporarily suspend Chamber operations if the County refuses to lift the restrictions, saying that, as treasurer, he would not write any cheques the Chamber couldn't cover.

But the membership rejected this request. Several members said they would not accept any move that might lead to the Chamber's demise and that passing the resolution would amount to playing a game of "brinkmanship" with the County.

It was agreed by the members that, having made their feelings known, the ball is in the County's court and it's up to Council to present a new proposal.

County Council meets this Wednesday.

Budget coverage contained errors, says County

by Susan Grober

A local newspaper has been scolded for misleading its readers with an erroneous editorial on the county's 35.7 per cent budget increase.

At last Monday's Dysart council meeting, county Chief Administrative Officer Gary McKnight pointed out errors in a column in the March 26 issue of the Haliburton County Echo. McKnight also made a similar presentation to Snowdon council the previous Monday night.

McKnight was referring to a column by publisher Len Pizze, which criticized county councillors for passing the budget increase.

The first mistake McKnight noted was that Pizze wrote the increase was by 37 per cent, rather than 35.7.

He also objected to Pizze's statement that not one councillor spoke against the increase. McKnight said county council members — who are all the reeves and deputy-reeves — scoured through the budget and managed to bring it down from an expected 50 per cent increase to local taxpayers.

And McKnight took Pizze to task for writing that council's "half-hearted justification for the outrageous increase" is that it has little control over welfare and Children's Aid expenditures.

"There's nothing we can do," said McKnight. "We have to pay those mandated programs."

The column stated the county took $90,000 out of reserve funds to cover a deficit of more than $84,000.

McKnight said this was way off base. In 1989, $100,000 of a capital reserve fund was earmarked to cover purchase of property for a new county building at the Allsaw Flats, survey costs, computer purchases, and renovations at the county building and registry office.

None of this reserve fund was used toward the deficit, said McKnight.

The 1990 deficit, which totalled $133,936, was the result of increases in the need for welfare and Children's Aid, as well as a $44,000 grant for economic development from the Ministry of Industry, Trade and Technology which didn't come through. Welfare's shortfall came to $99,929, while Children's Aid came to $22,160.

A surplus from previous years of $49,634 helped bring the total deficit down to $84,302, McKnight said.

"Some of the other departments didn't spend all their money because we knew we were in trouble with welfare," he later said in a telephone interview.

Another error which bothered McKnight was Pizze's claim that $100,000 has been budgeted for an economic development study.

McKnight said this figure isn't for another study. It actually covers the entire economic development budget, including office supplies, telephone, fax, promotion, equipment maintenance, office space, travel, and part of the salaries of planner Mark Stagg and a secretary. It also covers costs incurred by an economic development task force committee.

McKnight said 75 per cent of the $100,060 budget will be funded by the Ministry of Industry, Trade and Technology.

The Times contacted Echo editor Martha Perkins last Friday, giving her the opportunity to respond to McKnight's criticisms.

Perkins pointed out that the article in question was a column, based on personal opinion, rather than a news story, which reports just the facts.

"There's a difference between a news story and an editorial, which is somebody's opinion," she said. "Everybody's got a right to oppose something."

Some county projects started two years ago

(the planning process). We should be dragging our feet on planning."

Many of the budgeted programs in dispute were just coming onstream in 1989, said McKnight. They were approved then by county council, where Fearrey sat as Dysart's reeve.

McKnight also defended spending on the Gypsy moth program, which will only cost the county $15,000 because the province funds 80 per cent. "If you think this budget is devastating, just wait and see what this critter does," he said. "There won't be a tree left in Haliburton County if this critter keeps up."

A $75,372 increase over last year's $797,068 roads budget also had Fearrey angry. He pointed out the roads department overspent $5,068 last year.

To cut this budget means the county will get less roads funding from the province, said McKnight.

"We're trying to spend everything we can to get everything we can get from the province," said Fearrey. "Other counties are cutting their roads budget, we should to."

An increase in the library budget also had Fearrey jumping. "In a period of restraint, we gave the library $6,700 more to buy books. A callous business decision would be to cut hours in rural libraries each week," he said.

McKnight explained that the library was hit hard by pay equity. Salary increases and GST accounts for $20,368 of the total $84,000 library budget, he said.

A seasonal resident who didn't identify himself questioned spending on welfare.

Bill Davis said the present system of having all social services controlled by a department of the county is more efficient than the previous system where each individual municipality had control. "People who are not legit are not getting assistance," he said.

The social services department is made up of a director, who earns $45,000, and two caseworkers, who each earn $33,000. Provincial guidelines dictate a rural worker should have no more than 94 cases, but the two workers in the local department handles more than 300.

"I'll defend that department with my last breath," said McKnight.

The meeting closed with the words of Bob Whigmore, who said the taxpayers are sending a strong message that they are not happy with the budget. He said they give "100 per cent" support to sending the budget back.

Restrict rallies at cairn; legions

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Haliburton and Minden Legions are joining forces to try and prevent any more demonstrations from taking place at the County Cairn.

Last Thursday a delegation of members from both legions met with Minden council and asked that demonstrations not be allowed at the cairn, which is located beside the Minden Cultural Centre.

Haliburton Legion President Mabel Brannigan said concerns about the site arose after an anti-war demonstration was held at the cairn last January.

The rally, organized by peace groups, was held to protest coalition military action against Iraq and was attended by Victoria-Haliburton MPP Dennis Drainville.

Although that particular demonstration was peaceful, Brannigan said in other parts of Canada, war memorials have been spit upon and wreaths trampled.

"It could have happened here," she said.

Brannigan said the Haliburton Legion passed a motion to request that the cairn be placed out of bounds for all demonstrations, except Legion functions, in order to avoid future problems.

Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry said the cairn is located next to a public parking lot and it would be difficult to stop demonstrations at the site unless the monument is secured with a locked gate.

He said he wouldn't like to see anyone wishing to go privately to the cairn and show respect, deterred from doing so.

The cenotaph in Haliburton village is surrounded by a fence, by Brannigan said the gate is not always locked.

Councillor Mike Maher asked if Dysart et al has a by-law prohibiting demonstrations at the site, but Brannigan said so far it hasn't been needed.

Maher then suggested moving the cairn to a new location, perhaps to a corner of the fairgrounds, where a more secluded site with trees and shrubs could be established. While not wanting to criticize the present location, Maher said the monument could become "more of a shrine."

Although Minden's Rotary Park offers a location closer to the Minden Legion, Maher said he was worried that the annual flood of the park could damage the cairn.

The Legion delegation left council and returned after a visit to the site. Brannigan said the members decided it would be better to try and fence the cairn at the present location because it would be too difficult to move without damaging it.

The Minden and Haliburton Legions hope to stop demonstrations at the County Cairn

Judge finds unreasonable delay in getting case to court

Charges dropped in Monmouth construction death

by Susan Grober

Charges relating to the death of a Highland Grove man nearly two years ago were stayed because of unreasonable delay.

On July 26, 1989, 54-year-old Roger Ellis died while operating a backhoe to excavate under a cottage in Monmouth Township.

The Ministry of Labour later laid charges under the Occupational Health and Safety Act against construction worker and supervisor Arthur Barras, and Schwandt Aggregate Ltd. for not taking steps to ensure Ellis's safety.

The matter was heard by Provincial Court Judge George Inrig last Wednesday in Minden.

Crown Attorney D. McPhail withdrew the charges against Schwandt Aggregate, and two of the charges against Barras.

There were then only two charges remaining against Barras — one as a constructor, and the other as a supervisor — for failing to take every precaution reasonable to ensure the safety of the workers.

When she arraigned Barras, Court Clerk Janice McCarthy said adequate beams were not placed under the space beneath the cottage. When Ellis excavated under the inadequate space, the cottage shifted and he was crushed, said McCarthy.

Defence lawyer Scott McLeod made an Askov application, asking that the charges be stayed because there was an unreasonable delay for the charges to go to trial.

McLeod also argued that the ministry took too long to prepare for the trial, and that he'd had problems receiving information before the trial.

He also said the Crown hadn't provided him with a list of witnesses until just last month.

"This wait has taken an extreme toll on my client," said McLeod. "He's ready to proceed today, and until we came here today I didn't know what the charges were against him."

"Mr. Barras's right to make full answer in defence has been seriously jeopardized," McLeod continued. "Until today, I didn't even know (company owner Chester) Schwandt would be a witness."

McPhail explained that the ministry didn't press charges until a coroner's inquest was completed on February 13 and 14.

"This is not a simple matter, your honour," she said. "We didn't receive the transcript of the inquest until late spring of 1990."

She said "the actual contravention" didn't fall under any regulations in the health and safety act, so the charges were laid under "an umbrella of not giving adequate protection."

She said it should have come as no surprise to the defence which witnesses she would call. "And the defence is well aware of what witnesses will be saying."

Regarding the ministry's delay in preparing the trial, Judge Inrig said: "It may be that they are as short on staff as we are. And that is why the Askov decision was made."

He then decided to stay the proceedings. "I'm of the opinion the matter has taken far too long to come to this court."

On Thursday, McLeod told The Times that information from the coroner's inquest proves the allegations that Ellis was crushed and that Barras was responsible were unfounded.

According to the inquest, Ellis actually died of aspiration as the result of a heart attack, said the lawyer.

"He never had a single broken bone in his body," said McLeod, adding that Ellis was pinned inside his machine after the cottage shifted.

The cottage was raised by a number of support beams, said the lawyer, who used the analogy of a table with 12 legs that had one leg knocked off.

"Either before or after the heart attack, the backhoe knocked a support beam," he said. Ellis "was operating his backhoe when everybody had gone for lunch."

McLeod said Ellis was on medication, and took his breaks at different times than the other workers.

Ellis was an independent contractor hired by Schwandt Aggregate Ltd. to perform excavation work.

McLeod said the company was using a support method for the cottage which "they had been using for 25 or 30 years."

The inquest also stated that the fire department and ambulance crew were at the scene less than 12 minutes after the cottage shifted. "They are to be commended," said McLeod.

Minden rink sweeps last 'spiel of the year

Curlers from throughout this part of Ontario travelled to Minden April 6 to enjoy the hospitality of the local club and compete in the last bonspiel of the year, Sweep into Spring. The pleasant but extremely warm weather conditions created ice problems for the curlers, and several games had to be cancelled to accommodate the rapidly deteriorating rinks. However, after the fog had settled, the Nancy Garbutt foursome from Minden emerged victorious to capture the championship in the 'A' event. Seen with the bonspiel hardware, top right, the team included, from the left, Carol Puffer, Nancy Garbutt, Laurie Ann Roodenburg, and Nancy Adamson. The Mary Parks foursome from Whitby took first place in the 'B' event. Team members, below, included, from the left, the skip Mary Parks, vice Sandra Wood, second Helen Collins and lead Ann Chapelle. 'C' winner was a Wilberforce rink. Members included, in the lower right photo, from the left, skip Rhonda Walsh, vice Roberta Walsh, and lead Jo-Ann Olszewski. Absent was second Kathy Walsh. Following the presentation of trophies and prizes, the curlers were entertained with a series of skits.

Minden claims 5-2 win in Haliburton tourney

by Janet Horsley

On April 6 Minden's Novice "C" team travelled to Haliburton to participate in the Glen Dart Memorial Tournament.

Although the two tyke teams lost the two previous games, the Novice C team was bound and determined not to let Haliburton win this one.

The first period was just a small show of what the rest of the game would turn out to be like. Ending with a 1-1 tie.

Seven minutes into the second period Minden scored. Now having the lead, the period continued as the two teams battled the puck up and down the ice. Haliburton desperately tried to tie it up, but were unable to do so.

In the third period, Minden never gave Haliburton any slack. Eleven minutes into the period Minden had scored two more goals. By this time Haliburton knew that they had to buckle down and as a result managed to score again. But much to their surprise, with 1:06 left in the game, Minden scored again ending the game with a score of 5-2 for Minden.

Nice game guys, we knew you could do it.

Goals scored by Minden: 4 unassisted goals by Cameron Neville, #18; 1 unassisted goal by Ashley Pettes, #7.

We would like to thank Haliburton for inviting us to their tournament.

Also the Novice C team would like very much to thank their coach Brian Neville and manager Jay Horsley for giving them as much of their free time as they could, which in return brought home the consolation trophy for the year for Minden's Tri-County Novice "C" team.

Study shows need for central county hospital in 10 years

mittee membership be drawn from residents of the county. "It was important that the people feel a sense of ownership," she said.

Minden resident Doug Campbell said the committee was "breaking new ground" with the study. "We couldn't look over our shoulder and see what someone else had done," he said.

In order for the study to be successful, Campbell said the directional plan had to be based on facts obtained through the committee's investigations.

Campbell outlined some of the tool used in the data collection process including an accommodation and waiting list survey, focus groups, open houses, a demographic survey of the county and an assessment of the frail elderly and disabled persons living the county.

The accommodation and waiting list survey was a snapshot of the people requiring institutional and chronic home care treatment and whether their needs were being met inside or outside the county.

Campbell said the demographic survey showed the need for some form of public transportation in the county because of the geographic isolation in the county.

Within the next decade, Campbell said there should be an investigation of the possibility of amalgamating acute care in Minden and Haliburton villages into a central 30 to 40-bed hospital.

Bicroft Reeve Bill Howe, who sat as the County's representative on the committee, said that after participating in the study he could understand "why no rash action could be taken to build anything until there was some rationale of where we're going and why we're doing it."

He said there is wide range of multi-level services available in the county and its important to coordinate all these services and "start working as a team."

There has to be some sort of common access point where resident of the county can access the services they require, said Howe.

Haliburton County has a higher proportion of senior residents than any other area of the province, said Howe, and the municipalities with the greatest proportion of seniors are in rural areas outside the two main villages.

He said the Chronic Home Care program must be enhanced to provide services that are beyond its current mandate.

In developing strategies for Haliburton County, Howe said it's important to "be in tune" with the long-term care reform objectives of the province. "If they're not in concert, everyone's wasting their time," he said.

"I'm very satisfied. It's a good report and I'd like to see it implemented."

Jack Brezina presented the goals and strategies outlined in the report. The committee identified eight goals to improve the quality of care in the county then devised a list of strategies to achieve each of the goals.

Brezina said many of the strategies, while standing on their own, will also have an effect on other recommendations in the report.

As an example, he said the suggested creation of a public transportation service will be a factor in other recommendations such as a central volunteer bureau, the establishment of housing for young disabled people and an expansion of Hyland Crest services outside the facility.

And while there is an emphasis on the elderly and disabled, Brezina said the committee has not ignored other segments of the community whose needs are not as pressing.

Issues like expanding hospital services, improving emergency response, mental health services and health education are all examples of initiatives that will benefit the community at large, said Brezina.

After the report was presented, it was unanimously accepted by the members of the District Health Council.

Members of the committee will be presenting their findings to County Council at this Wednesday's meeting and a series of open houses have been scheduled to allow the public to ask questions about the plan.

The dates and locations of the meetings can be found on the front page of the supplement.

The following are some of the recommendations proposed by the Steering Committee in the directional plan for Haliburton County.

- The establishment of 40 new long-term care beds in Haliburton County to be located in Minden and Haliburton villages as well as in rural areas.
- A central volunteer bureau which will provide a recruitment/placement centre for all institutions and agencies.
- Existing long-term care facilities could be encouraged to develop off-site services such as respite, geriatric day care.
- A comprehensive transportation system must be developed.

transportation system must be developed.

- A service access organization should be developed to provide a single point of access to a wide variety of services and treatment.
- A creative and responsive network of emergency services must be developed, including an updated County Disaster Plan.
- The Family Violence Network should be enhanced and include social services, the social action committee, clergy, the OPP and the Mental Health Clinic.
- The development of a joint, locally based management board for the two hospitals and the long-term care facilities.

hospitals and the long-term care facilities.

- The emergency services network must be enhanced. This will require, appropriate manpower and equipment, an emergency response system (i.e. 911 phone number), resources for emergency airlift and enhancing trauma capability at one, if not both, hospitals.
- Long range plans for a central, 30 to 40-bed county hospital that offers more specialized treatment and support.
- An assessment of the Minden Hospital to determine if the structure should be repaired or replaced.

Stanhope supports preservation of Mountie uniform

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Stanhope council is supporting a fight to maintain the traditional dress code of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

At last Wednesday's meeting, councillors supported a motion to send $50 to the "Defenders of the RCMP Tradition", an organization challenging the right of some officers to wear turbans as part of the uniform.

The Defenders are bringing a court case against the Government of Canada and the Commissioner the RCMP on the grounds the exempting members from the dress code violated the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

This action is in response to the RCMP's decision to allow officer of the Sikh religion the right to wear turbans, a symbol of their religion, while on duty.

"I certainly agree with what they're trying to do," said Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis. "It's ridiculous to allow these guys to put on straw hats or turbans." He said the RCMP uniform is a strong tradition in Canada.

Councillor Murray Daniels said the culture of immigrants should not be replacing Canadian values. "What about our culture and our tradition?" he asked.

Deputy-Reeve Ann Barker said that as a child living in England the red RCMP tunic was a symbol of Canada. "Not the turban, that India," she said.

"It's a shame it ever got this far," said Elinor Harrison.

Davis said he thinks, "90 per cent of Canadians feel this way." He said he wouldn't mind sending the Defenders of the RCMP tradition $25, to which Daniels replied, "I'll give you that out of my own pocket."

After passing the motion to send the $50, Harrison said; "If it will do any good, it's money well spent."

Barker said that if people want to join the RCMP, they should know the traditions. The uniform is part of the heritage of the force, she said.

Berry assumes Reeve's county duties

While Minden's reeve recovers from his recent heart attack in Florida, Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry is assuming his County Council responsibilities.

At last Thursday's council meeting, Berry said he's heard from Reeve Ray Moore's family that Moore is still convalescing in his Florida condominium, and is in "good spirits and looking forward to coming home."

Berry said he's asked to take Moore's place on County committee's in the meantime. "It's a little more work but we can't have another councillor take those positions," he said.

"We'll just have to hold the fort as best we can until Ray returns."

Moore suffered the heart attack on March 13, while vacationing near Tampa Bay. We underwent double by-pass surgery on March 27 and is not expected back in Minden until May.

Cliff Dawson's dedication to the community is recognized

Legion member receives highest award for service

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

A member of the Haliburton branch of the Royal Canadian Legion has been honoured with the highest award given by the Legion.

Cliff Dawson, who has been a member of the branch since 1947, was awarded the Legion Meritorious Service Medal recognizing his dedication and contributions to the community.

Dawson is the first Haliburton member to receive the medal.

Upon receiving the award, Dawson thanked his fellow Legion members who, he said, "made this possible."

He said the fellowship he's enjoyed during his 45 years in the Legion, "made the efforts worthwhile."

"It's nice to say, I'm proud to be a Legionnaire."

A native of Stanhope, Dawson joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1941 and served during the war in North Africa and Northern Ireland.

He returned to Canada, married and started the insurance business that bears his name.

A past-president of the Legion, Dawson has served on numerous committees and was instrumental in building a new site after the old Legion burned down in 1963. More recently he's served as chairman of the corporation that built and maintains the Parklane Seniors' Apartments and the soon-to-be constructed Echo Hills complex.

Outside of the Legion, Dawson has been an active member of the Haliburton Rotary Club, where he also served as president, and is a recipient of the Paul Harris Award, Rotary's highest honour.

Dysart Councillor Murray Fearrey described Dawson as a "pillar of the community," and one of those special people who does things for his community without talking about his accomplishments.

MP Bill Scott said Dawson is an example of the kind of tireless volunteer spirit that makes the community a better place to live in. "This is what make our country great," he said.

Branch President Mabel Brannigan said Dawson made "unusual personal sacrifices of time, money and talents," and described him as a great credit to the branch.

Also honoured during the Legion/Auxiliary awards night was Eileen Morrison, who has been a member of the auxiliary since 1959 and was presented with a life membership.

Three other members of the auxiliary, Edith Day, Marjory Peel and Mae Wilson were recognized for becoming members of the 'over-80' club

Teenage nightclub proposed in Dysart

by Susan Grober

A nightclub for teenagers is planned for Haliburton Village this summer.

Kim Curry approached Dysart council Monday with her plans to open a club catering to those too young to go to bars.

She asked council to consider changing its bylaw which restricts hours from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. during weekdays, 11 a.m. to midnight on weekends, and 1 to 10 p.m. on Sundays.

"I'll need hours until 1 a.m. every night," she said. "Otherwise, they (patrons) will just end up going into the streets at one, probably."

The nightclub would be open during the summer, while school is out, every night of the week.

The club would be in the lower section of Halco Plaza. Pre-packaged food and pop would be sold.

And no alcohol would be allowed on the premises.

An adult bouncer will ensure there's no alcohol on the premises, and Curry will be on hand to circulate.

Curry, who graduated from Haliburton high school last year, said the club would run from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m., and there would be no outdoor speakers.

"And there's no houses close by, so it shouldn't bother anybody," she said.

The building can fit 150 people, she said. There will be dancing at the club, and Curry hopes to bring in a pool table.

Councillor Bob Nicholl commended Curry for her initiative. "It's a good idea," he said.

Councillor Murray Fearrey agreed, but added: "If there are problems with it, I'd be the first one to say you'd lose your permit."

"I wouldn't even think of opening it (only) until 11," said Curry.

Councillor John Parish said an early closing time wouldn't be beneficial. "All you're doing is dumping people in the street that you want to keep in there."

Reeve Bill Davis said he trusted Curry's judgement.

"She's the type of person who would run it the right way," he said.

Council agreed to amend the bylaw.

Dysart approves study of Kashagawigamog water

A $100,000 capacity study of the Lake Kashagawigamog water shed has been approved by Dysart council to determine the impact of a sewage treatment plant expansion.

The move is in response to the Ministry of the Environment's request for more study before giving final approval on a project to expand the Haliburton Water Treatment Plant, and extend the sewer line to service resorts along the lake.

The ministry has requested information on a number of resort units and residences within the chain.

The ministry is concerned that more lakeshore development will add phosphorus that the lake chain cannot handle. So a phosphorus modelling analysis is to be completed by July 1 of this year.

The ministry will pay 81 per cent of the study.

John Howard Society appoints coordinator of Young Offender service order program

The Board of Directors of the Victoria/Haliburton Branch of the John Howard Society is pleased to announce the appointment of Vi Parrott at Coordinator of the Community Service Order Program for Phase One Young Offenders.

The Community Service Order Program, for Phase One Young Offenders, has recently been funded by the Ontario Ministry of Community and Social Services through the Peterborough area office. It has a mandate of securing and monitoring placements for Young Offenders, both male and female between the ages of twelve and sixteen, who have been ordered to perform community service hours by the Courts or through the Alternative Measures Program.

Parrott brings with her experience as a former Probation Officer with the Ministry of Community and Social Services and has worked extensively with young people who have come into conflict with the law.

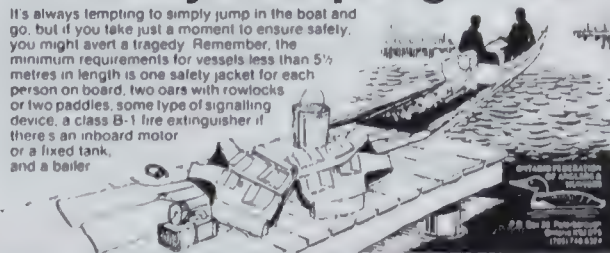

Branch Executive-Director, Paula Osmok, stated that the John Howard Society is a non-profit, charitable, social service agency with a prevention mandate. Other programs and services currently offered to the community include the Housing Coordination Program, the RESPONSE Men's Group Program for men who use violence to control their partners, the Outreach Literacy Program, the Haliburton Highlands Literacy Program, the Workplace Literacy Project, the Community Service Order Program for Ministry of Correctional Services clients the jail visitation program, our Community Education Program and our core services. For more information, please contact the society at 328-0472.

It's always tempting...but It's always tempting to simply jump in the boat and go, but if you take just a moment to ensure safety, you might avert a tragedy. Remember, the minimum requirements for vessels less than 5 1/2 metres in length is one safety jacket for each person on board, two oars with rowlocks or two paddles, some type of signalling device, a class B-1 fire extinguisher if there's an inboard motor or a fixed tank, and a bailer.

Flaws in the system

Reflections

by David Suzuki

This month the BC Forest Ministry sponsored a conference on "biodiversity", the range of living things that make up the intricate web of life that keep the air, water and soil clean, nourishing and fecund. Various experts discussed the values of biodiversity in forests and watersheds, and the threats posed by human activity, such as logging, mining, dams, pollution and agriculture.

After the opening speech, a member of the audience rose and spoke emotionally of his fears and frustration. He told us he had dropped out as a hippie in the '60s and returned as an ecoactivist in the '80s. But accelerating destruction of the forests was pushing him to consider evermore desperate measures including violence and lawbreaking. Would we join him, he challenged us.

The power of the environmental movement has been its uncompromising commitment to nonviolence. But increasingly, people sense the urgency of global degradation and express rage and frustration over government reticence or inaction. Perhaps it's unrealistic to expect politicians to act with the speed, commitment and vision needed.

The history of chlorofluorocarbons is instructive. When freon, a kind of CFC, was announced in 1930, it was hailed as a wonder chemical—stable, nontoxic, noninflammable—from the folks who had brought us nylon, plastic and DDT. By 1976, over 750 billion pounds were being made in the United States alone for use as propellants in spray cans, refrigerants and cleaning solvents for silicon chips. In the early '70s, scientists discovered that in the upper atmosphere, ultraviolet radiation breaks chlorine off CFC molecules and the liberated chlorine is highly reactive, breaking down the ozone.

Ozone in the upper atmosphere absorbs most of the UV from the sun. The small amount getting through induces a "tan", but in heavier doses, UV causes genetic damage to the DNA itself. It kills micro-organisms, and in people, UV induces skin cancers (including deadly melanoma), cataracts and reduced effectiveness of the immune system. We don't know what increasing intensity UV will do to forests, ocean plankton, agricultural crops or wildlife.

In response to the scientific announcements, consumer demand for spray cans declined and the chemical industry developed alternatives that had less chlorine. The issue died down until 1985 when atmospheric scientists discovered an immense "hole" in the ozone layer above Antarctica. This galvanized the scientific, political and industrial community as well as the public, and by 1990 over 50 countries had agreed to a total ban on CFCs by the year 2000.

Few environmental issues are as clear-cut as the CFC-ozone story.

The offending causative agent is pinpointed, the effects on ozone and UV are known while less destructive alternatives are available. Yet there were too many uses for CFCs and economically too important to stop their production immediately. Even after they are banned, CFCs will continue to escape into the air for decades.

Compared to ozone depletion by CFCs, ecological problems like global warming, toxic pollution or rainforest destruction, are far more complex for identifying the cause, effects and solutions. If it is taking so long to act on CFCs, how much longer will it take to respond to these other issues?

The environmental impact of massive dams, clearcutting and toxic pollution of water are already so serious that immediate and heroic measures are needed.

Over the past year, citizens have taken the federal Environment Department to court to try to force the government to do what it's supposed to do—carry out environmental impact studies of the Kemano dam and logging Clayoquot Sound in British Columbia, the Oldman River dam in Alberta, the Rafferty-Alameda dams in Saskatchewan, the James Bay hydroelectric project in Quebec, and the Point Aconi coal plant in Nova Scotia.

Is the answer to this grotesque situation the election of the right kind of politicians or party? Or are there fundamental flaws in the structures and priorities of government itself that, regardless of politician or party, preclude serious action on major environmental issues?

In the coming weeks, I will make the case that there are deep flaws in our institutions, which virtually guarantee that the environment will not be protected.

Woman fined for passing NSF cheques

The following cases were heard last Wednesday by Judge George Inrig in provincial court in Minden. Jerry Woron acted as Crown Attorney.

Cheques bounced

A woman must pay a $200 fine after pleading guilty to passing two bad cheques totalling $292.87.

On August 30, 1990, Nancy Langille paid for $114.21 worth of groceries at the Haliburton IGA with a cheque from an account with non-sufficient funds.

On January 21 of this year, she wrote a $178.65 cheque from the same account to pay for food and drinks at the Olde Boathouse Restaurant in Carnarvon.

Court was told Langille is in the process of making restitution to the two establishments.

Woron said a bank manager has advised there have been many NSF cheques returned on that same account.

"What's the problem with your bank account?" asked Judge Inrig.

"Sometimes I miscalculate, and other times my deposit doesn't get in on time," said Langille.

"I can make an order that you can't write cheques anymore," said Inrig.

"I have no bank account anymore," said Langille, who now only pays with money orders or cash.

In accordance with Woron's request, the judge ordered Langille to make restitution, and fined her $100 for each of the charges.

Tires slashed

A 55-year-old man previously found guilty of slashing tires on three vehicles owned by friends and relatives of his estranged wife must make restitution and received a suspended sentence.

On April 14, 1990, Kenneth K. Bott, of Welland, slashed two tires on each of three vehicles owned by his wife's brother, sister, and friend.

Judge Inrig ordered him to pay $360, $140 and $180. He also registered a conviction, suspended sentence, and placed Bott on one year probation.

The woman's brother, who requested $180 compensation for the tires during a trial, later asked for a total of $362.20 to include other costs such as wheel balancing and other items.

The man wasn't under oath when he requested the extra money. Judge Inrig said he couldn't accept the new figure because it couldn't be proven.

Judge Inrig also ordered that Bott have no contact with his wife, except through the courts.

Driver impaired

A 36-year-old man was fined $350 and lost his driver's licence for one year after pleading guilty to driving with more than 80 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood.

On March 13, Kirk L. Magee was observed by police while driving north on Highway 28 in Cardiff Township.

Magee was stopped after he was seen driving along the shoulder three times,

In the courts and crossing the centre line the width of a tire once.

Two breathalyzer tests determined he had 107 and 111 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood.

In his vehicle, police found 19 full and one part bottle of Molson's beer. Magee told police he'd consumed three beers.

Magee has no record of any kind, said Woron.

"This is the first time I've ever been up for anything like this," said Magee, who needs his licence to help support his family. "I guess I let a lot of people down."

Judge Inrig explained there was nothing he could do to save Magee's driver's licence.

"Ten years ago, I could give you a conditional licence, but I can't do that now. The province took that power away."

Man charged $1,000

A Snowdon man pleaded guilty to charges of impaired driving, and failing to remain at the scene of an accident with another vehicle.

On November 25, 1990 at 9 p.m., Paul H. Shaw pulled his pickup truck into the private driveway of a home he shared with his common-law wife in Lochlin and backed into the woman's vehicle while reversing.

The woman came out of the house and confronted Shaw, who then left, said Woron.

The woman's car was damaged on its side and front, but Woron didn't have the cost of the damage available.

The woman called police, and said Shaw appeared intoxicated.

Police then went to a home on South Lake Road and knocked on the door, but there was no answer. "The accused was known to frequent this house," said Woron.

At 11 p.m., Shaw returned to the woman's house, but could not get inside because she locked the doors.

Police then returned to the South Lake Road residence, and found Shaw walking outside, unsteady on his feet.

Two breathalyzer tests determined Shaw had 175 and 165 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood.

Defence lawyer David Shapiera said Shaw is a self-admitted alcoholic who had been receiving treatment, but fell off the wagon after a separation from his common-law spouse.

Since the offence occurred, the 50-year-old man has been attending counselling for alcohol on a regular basis, he said.

Judge Inrig fined Shaw $500 for each of the offences, and suspended his driver's licence for one year.

Immigration centres provide services by mail

Commencing April 1, 1991, ALL inland Canada Immigration Centres in Ontario will be providing a number of services by mail. This mail-in pilot project will be initially conducted for a one-year period.

Clients will now be able to seek and apply for service without experiencing long waiting times or loss of wages/time from work.

All itinerant service operations in Ontario will cease during this project and will be serviced by the mail-in system.

The mail-in service includes the processing of requests for employment authorizations, student authorizations, extensions of visitor status, requests to apply for landing from within Canada, verification of permanent resident status, returning resident permits and undertakings of assistance.

Mail-in kits will be available to clients who reside in the jurisdictional area of the Oshawa and Orillia Canada Immigration Centres (see list below), and can be obtained by contacting the appropriate office by telephone.

Clients are requested to direct all Immigration inquiries to the Orillia Canada Immigration Centre by calling 705, 326-9421 or 1-800-461-0230, if calling from area codes 705, or Zenith 11600 (Operator Assistance from area codes 416 and 519); or the Oshawa Canada Immigration Centre by calling 416, 5780-2002, or 1-800-263-3982.

The area of jurisdiction for the Orillia Canada Immigration Centre is: Counties of Simcoe and Haliburton; Districts of Parry Sound and Muskoka to Sundridge and Port au Baril; County of Victoria, north from Highway 7 to 36 to Bobcaygeon; Townships of East Gwillimbury, Georgina and Brock; and the Counties of Grey and Bruce, from Highway 10 at Flesherton to Chatsworth to Port Elgin north. The area of jurisdiction for the Oshawa Canada Immigration Centre is: The Regional Municipality of Durham; Peterborough County; Northumberland County, west of Highway 45; and Victoria County, south of Highway 7 to Highway 35 and south of Highway 36, excluding Lindsay.

Kids' Korner

by Jean Lacey

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

Staanworth news

Many residents 'under the weather'

So many of our Staansworth family have been suffering with coughs, that consideration was given to an "opera" but there was too many "off-key" notes.

Corrine Bonneville is back from hospital in Barrie and Mel Foster has returned from the Civic in Peterborough. Mae Minto, Viv Anderson and Jean Cowan returned to us from the Minden Hospital. When our snowbirds return, we should be in full swing for summer.

Thanks to Sylvia Howard and Jean Marsh, we are going to be involved in a project to aid Canine Vision Canada. This organization, headquartered in Oakville, trains and provides Dog Guides for the blind and visually impaired. The dogs are given intensive training before being matched with their companion. The next step is to train the student who could be from any place in Canada. Once the match is made, the student and guide are inseparable. They are a team. At the end of 26 days, there is graduation and a return home.

Because Canine Vision Canada is supported entirely by public contributions, the residents of Staansworth decided they could help. Jean Marsh has donated a beautiful hand-made quilt, and there will be a couple of other prizes to round out a draw. All the proceeds from the sale of tickets will go to Canine Vision to aid them in their work. Because of the support given to them by Sylvia Howard, a member from Oakville is to visit our building, with a guide dog, on the 28th of May. We will have a demonstration on the training of the dogs. We will keep you posted on the progress of this project.

During the winter months we have enjoyed sharing "in home" dinners, as well as weekly euchre games and movies. When the dart game expert (Mel?) was hospitalized, no one could keep score, so that activity is on hold.

We leave you with a couple of thoughts...

Be friendly and helpful-- if you would have friends, be a friend.

Smile at people-- it takes 72 muscles to frown and only 14 to smile.

A salute to volunteers

April 21 to 27 is National Volunteer Week. During this week, communities across the country will be paying tribute to their volunteers and, at the same time, will be celebrating the spirit of caring and concern that is so fundamental to the character of Canadian life.

Through their generosity and commitment, volunteers enrich the day-to-day lives of their fellow citizens and strengthen every aspect of our society. Yet, the vital importance of voluntary activity is not widely recognized.

To better understand the real contribution of volunteers, it may be useful to consider the value of voluntary work in terms of its economic impact. If the time volunteered through Canadian voluntary organizations were translated into a monetary equivalent (based on the average wage in the service sector), the collective value would be estimated at $13.2 billion annually--an impressive figure, indeed!

National Volunteer Week is the official time to recognize the efforts of volunteers and their profound influence on life in this country. A special word of thanks should go to those dairy companies and radio stations who generously agreed to help promote awareness of this national week.

This special week of tribute is only one way of showing our appreciation. Indeed, Canada's 13 million volunteers are a valuable resource to be cherished throughout the year.

Know policies before buying

by Doreen Hawman

April 22 through 28 is National Consumer Week, an event sponsored by both federal and provincial ministries responsible for consumer matters. This event is designed to help consumers become more aware of their rights and responsibilities in the marketplace.

According to the Ontario Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations refunds and exchanges are among the most common areas of consumer complaint. To celebrate National Consumer Week, here are a few consumer-tips to help you avoid problems in these areas.

Before making a major purchase, find out if a refund or exchange is available. Stores do not have to refund or exchange merchandise that is not defective. If they do, what conditions apply? What proof of purchase is required? Is there a time limit? Does the merchandise have to remain unused or in its original packaging with labels still attached?

Never leave a deposit unless you're sure you want to buy the product, because deposits usually aren't refundable.

A brochure called "Refunds and Exchanges: Do you know the facts?", can be obtained by contacting your nearest Information Centre.

In Haliburton, the office is located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Ave., open Monday to Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 457-2733. If you reside in the Minden area, the centre in the Anson, Hindon and Minden Municipal office is open Monday and Tuesday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 286-4100.

If you live outside the toll-free area, please call collect.

Acid rain report

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the period of March 31 to April 6.

March 31, 1 cm snow, 3.9 pH, from Southern Ontario and Ohio.

April 1, 1 cm snow, 4.0 pH, from Lake Huron.

April 4, 3 mm rain, 3.8 pH, from Southern Ontario, and Ohio.

April 6, 2 mm rain, 5.8 pH, from Southern Michigan.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

NOTICE

PUBLIC MEETING CONCERNING A PROPOSED ZONING AMENDMENT

TAKE NOTICE that the Council of the Corporation of the Township of Snowdon will hold a public meeting on the 13th day of May, 1991 at 7:30 p.m. at the Township Office in Gelert to consider a proposed zoning amendment under Section 34 of the Planning Act, 1983.

THE PROPOSED Zoning Amendment would change the provisions of the Township's Comprehensive Zoning By-law to permit an additional dwelling unit to be created in existing houses in the Township so as to provide more affordable rental accommodation in the Municipality. This By-law permits these "converted dwellings" in the General Residential (R) and Rural (RU) Zones.

THE PROPOSED By-law applies to the provisions of the text which are pertinent to the entire Township and for this reason a Key Map is not included.

ANY PERSON may attend the public meeting and/or make written or verbal representation either in support or in opposition to the proposed zoning amendment.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION relating to the proposed zoning amendment is available in the Township Office during regular business hours.

DATED at Gelert this 11th day of April, 1991.

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to thank the V.O.N. homecare, also the doctors who took such great interest in me for the last year. We really looked forward to their visits, it helped to shorten the winter for both of us. Thank you all again.
Charlie Kent

I would like to thank the gentleman who plowed my driveway several times this winter, also my brother Edward. Thanks again.
Mildred Gartshore

What a wonderful surprise party and "Mommapping" trip! A great big thank you to all my family, to my friends who were involved in the party, to all the guests for their beautiful cards, gifts and best wishes, to the residents of Parklane for the bouquet of flowers. An extra special thank you to my family for the weekend. It was just great! My "70th" was certainly a memorable event. Thank you all so much.
Sincerely & with love,
Ernice Warder.

The Minden OMHA Novice Team would like to thank the following for their donations to their March 23rd tournament: Minden Home Hardware, Area "5", and Minden Rotary Club. As well, the team would very much like to thank all of the parents for their participation, because without them our tournament would not have been such a great success.

AT REST

HORSLEY, LELAND JOSEPH - suddenly at Kingston General Hospital on Wednesday, April 10, 1991, in his 75th year. Dear brother of Isobel Roote of Oshawa and Aletha Romeo of Port Perry. Fondly remembered by many nieces and nephews. Rested at the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home, Minden. Funeral Service in the Chapel on Saturday, April 13. Interment Minden Cemetery. Memorial donations to the Heart and Stroke Foundation would be appreciated.
